Travel Radio Australia and we are here at Cannes on the French Riviera at a fantastic event called MIPCOM Cannes, which is Media Intellectual Property and I have with me Nell Minchin and she's the head of Factual Productions for Easy Tiger Productions in Wollamaloo, New South Wales and Nell welcome to the program. Thanks very much Jeff. Yeah, now tell us about what you're doing here at MIPCOM and a little bit about yourself and Easy Tiger itself.

Sure, so Easy Tiger is one of Australia's leading scripted studios, independent production companies. They're known for Colin from Accounts, The Twelve, Territory on Netflix, Scrublands, all sorts of things. A lot of TV that most people have seen so we're really proud to represent Easy Tiger here at MIPCOM and we've got a huge great international reputation.

I've been brought in in the last few years to establish a unscripted department so that means documentaries, anything that is not a scripted option so it could be entertainment or comedic single documentaries or series and this is my first time at MIPCOM. And give us your impression, it's a fantastic place to be for the industry isn't it? Yeah, I'm absolutely loving it actually. I walked in and it's absolutely huge you know the conference center is massive, there's all the studio, the big famous studios Paramount, Fremantle, Warner Brothers, they've all got these massive stands and I walked in and felt huge imposter syndrome I have to say.

I felt very very nervous but quite quickly started my meetings where we're trying to pitch shows and find buyers for it and I've actually really enjoyed it and one meeting leads to the next and it's been a really good week. And we're here on the Screen Australia stand and Screen Australia have a big presence and right opposite is the ABC commercial so I suppose you've run into some great Aussie people here. I have, I have and I'm very proud that our first project out of our department, newly formed department is actually being sold at the ABC commercial stand over there so that's great and we've got two more series in production with the ABC at the moment.

Tell us about some of the hit productions that you've been involved in the past for Easy Tiger. Well Easy Tiger as a newly established department this is very much new for them. My past before Easy Tiger I was a director of documentaries for about 10 years so projects such as Making Muriel which was behind the making of Muriel's Wedding the Musical and the movie got to interview Tony Collette and Rachel Griffith.

I've made a documentary with Steve Warr about his relationship with cricket in India. I've worked with Celeste Barber on a fashion history series called The Way We War so yeah lots of different projects as a director and this is my last few years as a change into producing the sales side. The Easy Tiger team I suppose you've got a lot of talented people tell us about them too.

Yeah there's a huge huge team at Easy Tiger really brilliant it was founded by Ian Colley who's a very established well-respected producer and Rob Gibson he is the managing partner who comes from Stan where he was previously head of content so really amazing leadership team and then quite a group of people in Sydney working with the scripted slate finance legal everything you need really head of production so and then I'm actually out of WA so I'm out of Western Australia and I carry that unscripted. And your story in the beginning were you in broadcasting film TV how did that all come about? Yeah I started out in broadcast journalism well broadcast journalism I studied broadcast journalism at WAPA which is the West Australian Academy of Performing Arts and then quickly after finishing that degree moved to London so I actually spent five years in factual TV there before coming back to Sydney and then so I worked in companies as freelancer and then I became a director so yeah that was how it worked. It's a great event here at MITCOM and I've been coming here for it's my fifth MITCOM now I think and we must talk about all sorts of programs that are upcoming there's so many documentaries and series that are in development now and have you been pitched anything recently that takes your interest? Yeah I mean generally I do get pitched and I'm really open to hearing pictures anything that takes my interest to be honest I've just got to get grabbed by the subject of the team behind it makes a difference as well just knowing that they can deliver it but ultimately it's it's a very simple and boring kind of answer which is do I care like this is this something I care about and it's not me personally but do I care about it because it could reach this particular audience or personally I'm interested in it why I'm just gripped by the story.

Yeah and we've had fantastic Australian success stories such as Blue Ian which is really the number one kids show around the world right now. It certainly is I mean I think to speak on behalf of Easy Tiger Colin from Accounts is a huge hit internationally and everyone we speak to here just absolutely raves about it and loves it it's out in the US and the UK and has traveled everywhere so we're really proud of that one too and I think that would probably sit on screen Australia's top list as well. And how can people find out more online about Easy Tiger Productions? Yeah just www.easytiger.tv. Thank you so much now for joining us on Travel Radio Australia.
