

THE PENSIONER GANG IS NOW A PUBLISHED NOVEL ON AMAZON KINDLE

Diamond Media Group announces the publication of Geoffrey Harrison's crime drama novel ahead of the feature film's international development

BRISBANE, AUSTRALIA — September 2026 — Diamond Media Group has announced that The Pensioner Gang, written by Australian broadcaster and producer Geoffrey Harrison, is now a published novel available on Amazon Kindle.

The publication marks a significant milestone in the development of The Pensioner Gang as a broader international film project, with the novel providing the literary foundation for the feature film currently being developed by Diamond Media Group.

The Pensioner Gang: They thought they were done. Crime Didn't Agree. is a crime drama combining humour, suspense, international intrigue and larger-than-life characters.

Set against London and Amsterdam in 2008, the story follows a group of retired criminals whose past catches up with them when they become involved in one final, high-stakes operation.

What begins as an unlikely reunion develops into a story involving organised crime, betrayal, international connections, financial intrigue and a missing £60 million.

FROM NOVEL TO FEATURE FILM

The publication of the novel represents an important step in Diamond Media Group's strategy to develop The Pensioner Gang as an international feature film.

The film project is currently in development, with the story designed for an international audience and production planning focused on London and Amsterdam.

The project combines the published novel with the feature screenplay and existing film development materials, creating a developed intellectual property package for potential production and investment partners.

"Publishing the novel is a major milestone for The Pensioner Gang," said Geoffrey Harrison. "It means the story now exists as a completed published work while we continue developing the feature film. The novel allows audiences to discover the characters and story now, while the film project takes the next step toward production."

A STORY BUILT FOR THE SCREEN

Although The Pensioner Gang stands independently as a novel, its cinematic qualities are central to the project.

The story moves between London and Amsterdam and brings together an ensemble of distinctive characters whose relationships, secrets and competing interests gradually reveal the larger mystery surrounding the missing £60 million.

The feature film is being developed by Diamond Media Group for international audiences, with the project targeting cinema, streaming and international distribution opportunities.

NOW AVAILABLE ON AMAZON KINDLE

Title	The Pensioner Gang: They thought they were done. Crime Didn't Agree.
Author	Geoffrey Harrison
Format	Amazon Kindle eBook
ASIN	B0HJP11ZML
Availability	Published and available now

Amazon Kindle: Visit and purchase the novel

ABOUT GEOFFREY HARRISON

Geoffrey Harrison is an Australian broadcaster, journalist and media executive whose career spans radio, television and international media production.

Through Diamond Media Group and its production activities, Harrison is developing original film and media projects for Australian and international audiences.

The Pensioner Gang represents the convergence of Harrison's broadcasting, storytelling and film-production interests, with the published novel forming part of the wider development of the feature film project.

ABOUT DIAMOND MEDIA GROUP

Diamond Media Group is an Australian media and production company developing original entertainment and media projects for Australian and international audiences.

The company is currently developing The Pensioner Gang as a feature film project, alongside its published novel and associated development materials.

MEDIA CONTACT

Diamond Media Group

Australia

Website: diamondmediagroup.com.au

Media & Production Enquiries: Diamond Media Group

THE PENSIONER GANG

They thought they were done. Crime Didn't Agree.