MARKSSPEDIT

Travel Radio Australia and we're here in Khan at the magnificent International Golf Travel Market and I have with me Mark Stack. Now Mark Stack is the CEO of a great company called Sports Pacific Products. Energy foods and all sorts of supplement.

Mark welcome to the program. Thank you very much. And Mark how did the company start? How did it all get going in the first place? Back in about 2008 we've always been a family business.

Me, my brother, my father and my cousin Lance who was from America. We were sitting around table chatting and Lance said that he makes homemade cookies which is carbohydrate-based and he used to give them to his clients because he was a personal trainer in Los Angeles and said he knew at the time that me and my brother had children that were playing sports. He said would you like me to make some? So he did.

The noticed that you know normally they just have sugary drinks and they have a crash towards the end of games and it appeared to keep them going longer. So we thought right this is a fantastic product. It's food but let's give it a go.

So we looked at the roots of the market. Football and rugby are highly sponsored via food and drink companies. So we ended up looking for a spot where we felt that people using a lot of calories and they don't realize they're using a lot of calories.

We ended up in the golf sector and we turned it from a cookie into a bar, still all oat-based, still with ingredients you'll find in your kitchen from fruits and chocolate chips. From there we started off with two flavors chocolate and toffee and fruit and oat. We're now at eight flavors and we've now got two different ranges.

One range is game bites which is smaller bar for junior golfers and people that are more conscious about what the size of the bar there is. And we've also bought a product out called Rally Fuel which is for racquet sports. So it's trying to educate people in the fact that you burn 800 to 1200 calories while playing a round of golf and that's why people flag on the last four or five holes.

They're actually depleted of energy. They're not depleted of protein, they're depleted of energy and you get your energy through carbohydrates and the oat bar is a success because we constantly, if it didn't taste good then I wouldn't sell the product but it backs it up and we often cut the bar up, give it to people and you know we always get good reactions and we have people coming back for more even at shows. Generally end up feeding the shows.

You know it works out well and we're very very proud of the products. And speaking of shows we're here at the International Golf Travel Market. What's your experience of this show? The show's been fantastic for us.

We're getting to talk to people that are normally quite difficult to get hold of because they're so busy and they're operating their golf clubs and courses and hotels. We're trying to show that we're a quality product to go into their quality establishments either through the corporate side, through the complimentary bar side. It's been excellent for us because we've had some real good interactions with clubs from all around the world from Oman to Norway, Sweden, France, Belgium and obviously the UK, Portugal and Spain and France.
