

eccentric

Travel Radio Australia, we're here in the middle of Northampton City and we're at a very interesting place called the Eccentric Englishman, which is an incredible place. It's a bit of a fairyland, Alice in Wonderland sort of place. I have the owners here, can you introduce yourselves for us? Yeah, I'm Liz, AKA Lady Muck.

And I'm Mucker, AKA Muck, Lord Muck. Great, now tell us a bit about the Eccentric Englishman and what happens here. We do all sorts of things.

The main thing is cheesecakes, that's what we're known for, and also tiddly teas, which is alcoholic afternoon teas at teapot cocktails. Can I notice here, you're dressed up in your regalia here. I wish this was TV because you've got the fabulous beard and you've got all the flea.

Well, how would you describe it, your look? Well, the idea is to be literally an eccentric Englishman. Unfortunately, I've turned into more of a prop, sitting at the bar for the customers to shake hands and have photographs taken with. But there you go, everyone's got their cross to bear.

Now, you're very much a fixture here in Northampton. A lot of people come to you, and tell us a bit about the events and how they work. Well, I'm going to pass you over to the Lady Muck because she does all the events.

Yeah, as I said, he's the prop, so I'll just make him sit there and look pretty, more try. But what we do, we do all sorts of things. We do themed bottomless brunch quizzes, so friends, the Wizard of Oz, Harry Potter.

We also do themed afternoon tea, so Harry Potter, Alice in Wonderland, got a family fortune to come in at, so many psychic nights, that murder mysteries. Yeah, lots of different things. Yeah, always something going on.

And I noticed the interior, you spend a hell of a lot of work on the interior. Tell us a bit about it. We're always changing.

When we first opened the plan, we had two houses full, a van full, two sheds full. When we got it in, it still didn't cover anywhere near it, did it? But we're constantly looking. We also advertise local artists.

We get things given to us from people who want something to go to a good home. So yeah, we look after things for nearest and dearest of people. And we're always on the lookout for new things.

There's still room on the walls. Some of your favourite things? Oh, some of my favourite stuff. Well, basically, most of the stuff in there is what they call an eclectic mix, which is all with junk out of my sheds and my house.

When you walk in, it really is like walking into Narnia, Narnia, I'd say. Yeah, it's like that. Bit like Narnia.

Love a bit of Narnia. How long did it take you? When did you first start it off? Well, we're coming up to three years. The initial idea came up in lockdown.

We were looking at things in bigger cities. We don't find in our hometown. So we were creating some, it was a gamble.

And so far, it's worked out. Yeah, it's wonderful. It's right here in the main street next to the Optimus pub.

Tell us a bit about your website. How can people find out more about the Eccentric Englishman online? It's all on www.eccentricenglishman.co.uk. Also on our Facebook page as well, where the events going up to October on that one. On the website there's the next month you can find about cakes we do, events we do, menus are all on there.

The history, there's a little blog about the two of us on there as well. So, lots of stuff. Great.

Thank you very much. And Instagram as well, yeah. I'm very tourist friendly.

Oh yeah, I've been made very welcome here and it's a very magical place and I highly recommend the Eccentric Englishman to all of our Australian friends. Give us a shout out to people in Australia. Hello to everyone in Australia.

We've had quite a few of you in, so we're very welcoming. We'd love to see more of you. God love the Aussies.

Thank you guys. Have a great day. Thank you.

Cheers.
