First off, let's catch the ferry just outside the Embankment Tube Station for a June sunny day out in London. Travel Radio Australia, here we are at Embankment, and we're just about to get onto the Thames Clipper service, which takes you from the Embankment all the way to the beautiful Greenwich Village, which is a magnificent way to travel on the river, and this is only £5.10 for a 60 plus discount ticket, all the way from the all the way from here, which is Embankment, to Greenwich Village. So a beautiful way of travelling if you are coming to London.

There's the Uber boat just going past there, and we are getting on to the Thames Clipper boat, which as I say is a very reasonable. It's £10 for a normal ticket or for a 60 plus senior discount, it's only £5.10, so the the actual value is tremendous. We're just going to go through here and head off to to the actual embarkation point, which is in but boarding point C here on the embankment area, so well Hello, mate.

Can I go through there? Yeah, sure. Thanks. Okay, we're going to go through boarding point C here.

Thank you. Thanks so much. As you can see a beautiful blue sky day in London and lots and lots of boats.

We're looking here at the typhoon clipper, which is a lovely big boat, which will take you. That's not the one we're going on today. We're going on the Thames Clipper.

But as I say, what an amazing value. £5.10 for 60 plus all the way from embankment to Greenwich Village here in an unusually sunny London. There it is, the Mercury Clipper.

Now, these boats are incredibly powerful. They have huge engines and they pick up quite a bit of speed on the way, so we'll be bringing you that kind of experience once we get on board. Travel Radio Australia, Jeff Harrison, live here at Embankment in London.

Travel Radio Australia and we're here at the embankment waiting for the ferry to Greenwich and we have our lovely visitors from Los Angeles and it's Harry and Alisa. Now, you're heading off to Greenwich. Do you have any expectations or what made you think to come to Greenwich today? Down to Greenwich Market, some shopping, some fun on the river, the sights.

We're blessed. We got a lovely day in London. The weather is perfect to be on the water and heard that the market has been redone and is beautiful now.

You ladies are from Los Angeles and how are you finding London so far? Love it. People are so welcoming, polite, just great culture, amazing place. And what about your transport experience here on the tubes and the buses? Oh, we took the tubes here.

We're doing well. I like it. I haven't taken the bus yet, but yeah, London is the easy place to get around.

And here is our clipper, the London Rose, coming up here. Yeah, this is going to take us all the way to Greenwich, which is on a beautiful day like today, 25 degrees. And this is unusual for this.

And what's your plans for your next trip after London here? I heard you were going to a few other places. We're going to do a classic Oxford. They have a program for adult education.

We're taking class in landscape design. Oh, perfect, perfect. And then after Oxford.

And then we go to the Cotswolds and then off to Ireland. What a wonderful trip you have in front of you. And thank you, ladies, for being part of Travel Radio Australia and have a great time today in Greenwich.

Thank you. Our next trip will be Australia. Perfect.

Thank you. Thank you so much. Here we are on the London Rose and it's a very nice boat.

We have a fully-stocked car here. And they have a very nice deck out the back that we're going to. We're going to head up to now.

And like I say, it's a very, very good way, a cheap way of getting to Greenwich. Only £5.10, one way to Greenwich from Embankment. So, yeah, and we're just heading over past the London Eye, which is on our left, on the way up to Greenwich.

And we'll give you some more commentary as we go along. A lovely, lovely boat and beautiful areas to see at the boat here. Was it, it was launched in 1977, this boat, and it holds around about 274 passengers.

So, yeah. Here we go. We're downstairs and this is the Thames Clipper service to Greenwich tonight.

And we're going to turn around, making our way downstream. Now, if you look ahead of the boat on the left-hand side here, all this area that we're going to pass on the left, this is the South Bank of London. There's lots of arts and entertainment here.

You've got the Royal Festival Hall, the Queen Elizabeth Hall and the Purcell Room. If you've got young children, there's some really good street entertainment along this side of the river. And if you're brave enough, kids, they've got the water jacks over on the left.

Did you see that? They're pretty fun on a warm day. So, might want to have a little stroll along the South Bank later on. In front of the boat, Cherry Cross Bridge.

If you follow the bridge over to the right, there's a modern building and it's got the curved roof. That is called Embankment's Place. And this covers the platforms of Cherry Cross Station.

Like a lot of the modern buildings we're going to see on this journey, they aren't designed with a theme. So, they designed the buildings to look like something. The man who designed this building, he said, the building looks like a train leaving a railway toll.

Now, if you look at it very, very closely, you can see that it does look nothing like a train coming from anywhere. It does, in fact, look more like an American jukebox. You know the old world, it's a jukebox.

So, here's a very impressive building on the night side. Now, on the left, we've got a white ship. This is called the Wellington.

It used to be part of the New Zealand Navy. Today, it's a floating livery horn. This is a drinking club for retired sea captains.

The ship was part of the New Zealand Navy years ago. Today, a floating livery horn. So, this is a drinking club for retired sea captains.

At the back of the ship, there's a stone arch. That is Temple Arch or Temple Bar. And that divides the city of Westminster and the city of London in front of the boat.

Not a lot of people realize this when they come to London, but we do have some lovely beaches. Look over on the right. Look, a tropical golden sandy beach.

And you see a man that he's brought his children down to Bay in the sand and say, you'll be surprised later on if the weather stays like this, that'll be busy there this afternoon. Say, they have, sometimes you have 50, 60 people sitting there on a nice day. The southeast Riviera, don't forget that one.

The red building on our right, it's got a glass roof. Look at the windows up in the tower and they spell oxo, famous landmark of the River Thames. They used to make the famous gravy, the little stock cube.

It was made in the building here on the right, Stanford Ward. On the left of the boat, there's a red building. It looks like a church, Zion College and Library, a school and a study for the clergymen in London.

The building next door with the green sloping roof, that is the old city of London School. Past members of Parliament and some of our current top MPs, they went to school in this building before they moved to Oxford or Cambridge University. This is where they teach them to lie and cheat before they become a member of Parliament.

I say, we've had all the lies of the chicks so far. I'm sure they've not come in. This is Blackfriars now, folks.

This is a road bridge and it was opened in 1869. A really nice building before the bridge, the semi-circular one, that is Unilever House and that's the famous soap and detergent manufacturer. As we go under the bridge, if you look on the left and right hand side, you'll see red columns in the river.

They carried the very first railway over the Thames. The top of the railway bridge became unsafe. They had to take that away.

They could never remove the columns. The other bridges would fall down. It would undermine the foundations where they're all so close together, you see.

As we pass through the bridge, look to the left hand side, we have the Dome and the Golden Cross St Paul's Cathedral, the masterpiece of Sir Christopher Wren. It took 35 years to build. It was completed in 1710.

Now, the height of the building is very easy to remember. It's 365 feet tall, one foot for every day of the year. Look above the Dome on the building.

You'll see there's a viewing platform. I can't see if there's anyone up there. Now, there's a couple of people.

I'd say up the top of St Paul's, we get a lovely view over like that. Buried inside St Paul's, you'll find the tombs of Admiral Lord Nelson, the Duke of Wellington, and the architect Sir Christopher Wren. They're all buried in St Paul's on the left.

Here to the right of the boat, we've got a building with a tall chimney. This is the Tate Gallery of Modern Arts. It's the largest modern art gallery in the world.

Tate Modern is on the right. Then we've got the Millennium Bridge, or better known as the Wobble Bridge. This bridge was opened on a Saturday morning in the year 2000 by the Queen.

It was closed the same afternoon by the police because it was unsafe. So many people walked on the bridge, it started to bounce. People were falling over as they went across it.

Have a look under the bridge. We've slowed down. You can see the sort of crossbeams and there's weights and springs.

So the problem, the bridge was so light, the weight of the people made it bounce. So they had to add more weight. This de-wobbleized the bridge, if you like.

Travel news, features and interviews from around the world. This is Travel Radio Australia with your host, Jeff Harrison. We've got a story on you for Travel Radio Australia.

Can you just say hello to our people in Australia? Hello everybody in Australia. Thank you, mate. Lovely trip on the line of roads.

Thank you. No worries, mate. Cheers.

Have a good one. It's very nice, yeah. Yeah, so a lovely trip from here.

We've just arrived here at Greenwich Pier and we are heading up the gangway here. And you pretty much immediately come across the Cutty Stark ship, the very famous ship that has been restored and rebuilt from original. And that's sitting here with a glass dome on the bottom where you can walk underneath the ship.

As I said on the commentary, Greenwich Village is very nice. There's lots of pubs, shops, restaurants. Fabulous market here.

And it's a lovely trip. It's only about 20 minutes on the ferry from embankment to here at Greenwich. And we're walking out now into Greenwich Pier.

And here we are at Greenwich and a beautiful view back to the Shard. And we're just walking down to the fabulous Cutty Stark ship, which was a clipper running all the way around the world to the Western East Indies and of course the Australian routes, as they said, to carrying the wool. And a lovely, lovely place.

A beautiful day today, around 25 degrees Celsius here in late June. OK, we're just about to have a little bit of maritime Morris dancing here. And we'll try and get some audio from the guys who are performing here in Greenwich Village right outside the Gypsy Moth Hotel.

This is some of the free entertainment that is available. We're right outside the Cutty Stark. There's definitely a seafaring theme here.

We have the market here right in front of the Cutty Stark historic ship, which is looking fabulous with the blue sky background. And these are sort of like maritime Morris dances. And it certainly is entertaining.

It's pulling a big crowd here. As you can see, there's a lot of people who are here to entertain the crowd. And yeah, Travel Radio Australia here at the Cutty Stark at Greenwich.

Travel Radio Australia. And we're here in Greenwich Village for our Greenwich Village tour. And we have Sigma here, who's one of the assistant managers at the incredibly historic Gypsy Moth Pub, which is right next to the Cutty Stark ship.

And Sigma, welcome to the program. Thank you very much. Now, Sigma, this pub has an incredible history, the Gypsy Moth.

It's been a place of history for hundreds and hundreds of years. Tell us a bit about it. Well, there's been a pub in this place for about 230 years.

We weren't always called the Gypsy Moth. Before this, we were called the Wheat Sheath. The pub name got changed in 1972, I do believe, when the Gypsy Moth at four was more just outside.

She's unfortunately not with us anymore. She's currently being used as a training vessel. She's not sailing again, which is nice.

But yeah, we've been here a while. It's been here for a long time. And this is such a tourist hub, isn't it, for the Greenwich Village area.

And people sort of hit you. They go and see the Cutty Stark, which is right next door. And they come and see you here.

Yeah, it's very busy in the tourist season. You know, the sun comes out because we have such a big beer garden. It's very popular.

And we get full quickly. People see the Cutty. They go see the museum.

They see the observatory. So they do the little round and they come here for a little bit after. Yeah, Gypsy Moth.

And what's your background? How did you end up here at this historic pub? You're Norwegian and you're here working? Well, I came to England to study. And I studied at the university next to it. So it was one of the cases where I needed a job, found a pub, and I just stayed.

Was that the ex-nable college next door? So that's now become the University of Greenwich, which is most of that section, which is great. There's also part of it where you can go see the painted hall and they also have the music conservatory over there, which is great. And what's some of your favorite highlights of Greenwich from a local's point of view if people are coming here? So, you know, I like my pub, of course.

But there's also the lovely Greenwich Park, which is always great. And honestly, the views, I like being in Greenwich in general. You know, it's a nice place to be.

Oh, it's very relaxed and easy-going and a beautiful day today, like 25 degrees. We have the free entertainment right outside your pub, which is great. How can people find out more about the Gypsy Moth pub online? So we have a website.

You can literally just Google the Gypsy Moth Greenwich and you'll find a website where you find everything we offer in terms of food, drinks, any kind of bookings, that stuff. So there's also a little blurb there about the history. But you brought it off talking to the people in the pub for that.

Great. It's getting really busy here. So thank you very much for having us along at the pub here.

And we encourage everyone to at least visit the Gypsy Moth once in Greenwich. Thank you very much. Okay, if you are coming to Greenwich Village, one place you have to check out is Goddard's of Greenwich.

And Goddard's of Greenwich is a traditional pie and mash shop. Now, you get the pie, the mash, the green liquor all together. Now, this is a really famous London thing to do.

And they've got a whole range of pies here. They've got steak and kidney, chicken and ham, chicken and mushroom, steak and ale, cheese and onion. Traditional minced beef, even soya pies and chili minced beef pies.

And you can pick up out of all those range. We're just going to go inside here and see that you can hear it's very, very, very busy. And here we are inside Goddard's.

They also sell jelly deals here, which is a very, very traditional dish here in the UK. And yeah, it's packed all the time. They have both upstairs and downstairs here at Goddard's.

So if you are hankering for a traditional UK meal, pie, mash and liquor is very, very good and cheap too. It's only about five or six pounds for a meal up to 10 pounds. So it's not that bad at all.

It's just a very, very, very good here. And as I say, extremely busy all the time. So if you are coming on the weekend, you will get pretty quickly.

So great place. That's Goddard's pie, mash, deals and liquor here in Greenwich Village. Look it up.

It's a great place to be. All right, cheers mate. Yeah, just look for the green building on the corner, Goddard's.

And don't miss it if you're coming to Greenwich Village. And we are walking through Greenwich Village Market and the market was established way back in 1737. And you'll find everything here.

We have Goddard's Greenwich on the left hand side as you come into the market. And then you have all the bits and pieces. You have the Greenwich Market offices.

And as you come through, you'll see a massive range of products and gifts as we're walking through. And people have a really, really good time here. So on the weekend, the place is packed with people.

You've got all sorts of UK things here to buy. This is a fabulous place here. They've got badges and traditional UK based things that we'll just see if we can talk to the store owner here.

Okay, we're catching up with one of the store holders here at Greenwich Market, Peter Croft.

Peter, welcome to Travel Radio Australia. Yeah, hi there.

Now, Peter, you've been here for quite a while, I suppose, in the market. And tell us a bit what it's like having a store. You've got a lot of traditional badges, pictures, posters, all that sort of thing.

Tell us a bit about what you do. Well, this is my retirement project. I use street art images and also images of pop icons and produce something I can sell.

That's basically the idea. So I print them as prints, badges, fridge magnets or t-shirts. And it just gives me an opportunity to use my skills that I've developed over the years.

I'm basically a printer and I'm interested in photography and design and art. So that's what I do. Yeah, the pieces look absolutely fantastic.

Very original. And now tell us a bit about your experience having a store here. It's a special place to have a store, isn't it? It is.

This is a World Heritage Site and it is the only market in London that is in a World Heritage Site. So we get a lot of tourists and also there's a lot of wealthy local residents in the area. So we've got a mixture of people from all over the world as well as local residents and visitors from the other parts of the UK.

Who come here because it's a special place and we're privileged to sell here. Yes, it's a wonderful atmosphere, isn't it? How long have you been here at the market? In the market about three years. As I say, it's a retirement project.

I'm older than I look. But there you go. So it just gives me something to be involved in business and to sell products and to meet people in the market.

Do you have an online presence? I do, yeah, yeah. Tell us about that where people can go and find your stuff. Yeah, there is a QR code and a leaflet here that has our products online and they can be shipped anywhere in the world.

Yes, and that's Hartysan online. Yeah, Hartysan. Okay, oh, they're fantastic.

Yeah, really beautiful. Yeah, that's great.
