

SKI TV™ - Danielle Scott interview - World number three freestyle champion. [youaretube.com]

Daniel Scott, welcome to Ski TV. And Daniel, tell us a bit about your history. How did it all start for you? I started out as a gymnast since the age of three.

I'd never skied before, so what we do in Australia is that we actually take X gymnasts, put them in a fast track program. For two years, an intense program, I learned to ski, and then I started doing inverted flips. This year, that ice cold Michelle, fight for that white gold.

This one for them hood girls, them good girls, straight masterpieces. Rosie Nyle, we have been together since day one of my career. They've been just so incredibly helpful for me, getting me where I need to be on the best equipment I could have.

And I absolutely love it. I love their gear and, you know, take it around the world with me. Winter Olympics is fantastic.

It is nothing like the World Cup tour or the World Championships that we actually do every year. You know, once every four years, it's that massive world stage that we all attend and it's hard to explain. There's nothing like it.

My hero is definitely being Jackie Cooper. She recruited me into the sport, Alisa Campbell, for winning Australia's first gold medal, and obviously Lydia Lassler, who I've trained alongside previously. So we've got a real rich history in freestyle aerial skiing.

I say follow your dreams, you know, you've got to have the passion and when you do, it's easy. If you ever are afraid or scared, you've just got to think about what you love and then it becomes easy. Growing up a competitive gymnast, I always saw myself up there in the top rankings.

So I guess I strive for competition. In the future, I aim to be doing triple flips on snow, which not many women do. Going for a second Olympics next time around and always looking out for that Olympic medal.

The next Olympics will be in 2018, Pyeongchang, South Korea. Still got two, three seasons ahead of me to prepare for them, but it'll be exciting. Gold is always in the sides for the next Olympics, but, you know, I'll take anything and as long as I know I perform my best, then that's what counts.

If you want to follow my travels and our results and keep up with me on tour, you can find my athlete page under Danielle Scott on Facebook, also on Instagram, or just type my name into Google and my personal website will come up.
