

baratiliereedited

Travel Radio Australia, we are in Amsterdam at the Horacaba event, which is a business-to-business event for the hospitality industry in the Netherlands, and I'm at the barrel artillery stand, and this is a fascinating stand because they take old barrels of wine barrels or whiskey barrels and they turn them into fantastic furniture. I have the owner here and the managing director. Can you give us your name and your position, please? My name is Jan.

I'm the man in charge of the company, and we have a group of six companies, and we buy barrels worldwide, and we sell them also worldwide, and actually what we do is when the barrel is finished with wine and whiskey and don't give any more flavor to the liquor inside, we buy them and we turn them into beautiful articles for rain barrel saving, for water, for water plants, and also for your man cave, decoration on walls, standing tables, all kinds of products that we make from our thing. Everything you see we have online and offline, so we have an online shop at barrelatelier.com and also we have an offline shop so customers can come to visit us, and customers from all over the world come to our company and we sell actually worldwide, so it's no problem if you're in Australia or in Korea or Japan. We have customers everywhere.

We can load containers and that's where we base them. Now looking at some of the products here, I can see shapes of guitars, boots, there's all sorts of things, and you create wine racks from the barrel, so tell us about some of the designs you have. We have a special concept as Barrel Cave, and Barrel Cave, that's for every man cave or wine cave, we have special articles.

What we also do is in the garden industry, in Australia you have a Bunnings for example that we do, we make flower pots and rainbots, that's for sustainability, to keep the water, to save them for plants, so that's what we also do. And then we have the part of the furniture that's more for hotels, restaurants, that's why we are at this exhibition, to show a restaurant and a hotel a special flavor, a special feeling with the product, because everything that we did, the wood that we use is, the most barrels are more than 50, 60 years old, so it's a product with a story. It's not a new make product and that's why we are good in the market and people like our products.

You like our products, then you can live with it or you don't like it at all. Yeah, and the great thing is you're recycling these things that would otherwise take up landfill or be burnt up and not reused again. And like you say, if you have a man cave, these things are fantastic, because it feels like here on your stand that you're in some kind of pub or something like that and you can really make that feeling, right? We organize that the people at home or your shop or your wine booth will get an inspiration, a feeling that's comfortable, that's look-alike.

We don't have production in the Far East, it's all made in Holland in our own cooperage, so we're also the only cooperage in the Netherlands that's still available. There are a lot of cooperages for wine and whiskey, we have still our own cooperage for our own products that we supply and we ship actually worldwide, so if you have an interest, please take a look at our website. Yes, can you give us the website for Barrel Atelier? BarrelAtelier.com, everything is there.

Great, thanks for being on the program and certainly check this product out, because they look fantastic and if you do have a man cave, they can ship them to Australia or anywhere in the world, the Far East, it looks really great. Thanks for being part of the show. Thanks for your time, have a good time in Amsterdam.